How We Do What We Do

- We customize the protocol for each community we serve, always incorporating play, talking, smiling, laughter, and fun.

- We bring drums, percussion instruments, and other sound-making instruments and set them up in your facility with chairs you provide to accommodate the group size you want to participate.

- We begin with a short introduction to Rhythm Care™. Next, a wellness exercise gets the group feeling good and focused on being in the moment. Then, the collective group actively participates, elevates their well being, and has a great deal of fun! We end the session with everyone feeling better than when they came in.

- We hand out a feedback form to measure impact and outcomes so we can improve our service.

- We serve clients in one-to-one and group settings of up to 15 participants. We can make exceptions for larger groups.
Why We Do, What We Do

Everyone knows that music is a universal language and has served others in improving the health of the Mind, Body and Spirit for centuries.

Numerous clinical and non-clinical studies have been performed over past decades to better understand the reasons why music has such an impact. Some of the reasons remain unknown because the body is so complex. Yet the measurable outcomes continue to fascinate the scientific community as we learn more about the connections between using our senses, the mind and positive measurable biological change. Everyone is unique and everyone experiences a different effect in the application of the evidence-based protocol we apply. The most wonderful thing that happens is everyone who experiences our protocol walks away from the experience with feeling a sense of improved Well Being.
